ATLANTA, GEORGIA, SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 17, 1887.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE. Governor Gordon Calls on President Cleveland.

THE INTERVIEW PURELY SOCIAL

New Developments in the Mexican M Arrival of a Georgia Bridal Party-Removal of a Railroad Office.

WASHINGTON, December 16 .- [Special.] The senate was not in session today, and, after a short, but lively session, the house adjourned over until Monday.

Governor Gordon is still occupying his apartments here, and will remain until Sun-day. Mrs. Gordon is still with him. The governor has been most pleasantly entertained, and by special invitation called at the executive mansion today to pay his respects to President and Mrs. Cleveland. The interview was purely social, and nothing of an important nature was elicited.

of the Mexican mission. An afternoon paper expresses the belief that ex-Congres James A. McKenzie, of Kentucky, will get dames A. McKenzie, of Kentucky, will get the prize. It is believed that he is being back-ed strongly by the speaker and the entire dele-gation. It is also rumored that Mr. Bayard likes him best, though he by no means has any bitter feelings for the others. There is no change in the condition of the other candidates, though a large majority of them are very quiet just now.

Congressmen Barnes and Carlton, and Senator Colquitt were closeted today for some time at the Metropolitan hotel, but the nature of their conference could not be learned. The

It is not expected now that the committees recess, and it may be that, only a few days being given the speaker, he will have to defer cement even later.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lacy, of Savannah, arrived in Washington today, and are pleas-antly quartered here. The couple are spending a bright wedding-moon amidst the glories of a full Washington season. The bride was Miss Sallie Fleming, of Athens, well known to society in that city.

The controller's office of the Richmond and Danville road was removed to Richmond from this city today. The general manager, the general passenger agent, freight agent and chief engineer are still here. There are rumors that all the officers will go back to Richmond in a few months, though this is not authoritatively confirmed. It is said that the reason for the removal was caused by pressure brought from Richmond and The rumor also that Sol Haas will be made general manager in place of Mr. Thomas lacks confirmation. H. H. TALKING ABOUT THE TARIFF. A Little Set-to in the House Between Messrs.

A Little Set-to in the House Between Messrs.

Hatch and Reed.

Washington, December 16.—In the house Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, submitted a concurrent resolution that when the two houses adjourned on Monday, December 19, that they stand adjourned until Thursday, January 5.

Mr. Reed, of Maine, inquired the reason for the submission of this resolution.

Mr. Hetch replied that it was the usual resolution brought in at the first session of congress. The house had been in sosion since the first Monday in December. It was well known that nothing had been accomplished. The house was waiting for the speaker to announce the committees, and he (Hatch) was satisfied, from his personal knowledge and from what he had seen of the occupation of the speaker's time by members interested in committee assignments, that it was impossible that committees could be announced until after the holiday recess, as much in the interest of public business as for the comfort and convenience of the speaker.

Mr. Reed said that the peculiar condition of the business affairs of the country rendered the action which had been taken, or rather non-

the business analys of the country rendered the action which had been taken, or rather non-action, which had been suffered by the democratic side of the house, a matter of legitimate comment, both here and before the country. Take it all in all, it was without precedent. been suggested, but had not been acted upon, and yet it was proposed that the house adjourn for the helidays, and commence after recess where it had been the custom to begin at the opening of the session. If there were no matters of public interest before the country, such a course width a walker only received company. ters of public interest before the country, such a course might awaken only passing comment, but today congress was pressed upon by a serious public duty, which was the reduction of the surplus, which was coming into the treasury in a manner calculated, under the management of the treasury department, to be an embarrassment to the finances of the country. All were agreed, at least on the republican side, that this surplus should be reduced, and the republicans stood ready now to make a reduction, to which the other side was agreed, and that was in reference to the toffacco tax. He hoped that opportunity would be given them by the that opportunity would be given them by the powers that be, or were to be, to vote thereon, and show to the country some proper disposition in this regard. If the gentlemen on the other side found it somewhat difficult to arrange themselves alongside of the recent mesrange themselves alongside of the recent message, which had been sent them, that the republicans could well understand, and could give them assurances of most profound sympathy. [Laughter.] The message was to some demograts a summons from a very great ways off, and it required that they should traverse a very great distance before they could get alongside of their pioneer brother at the end of the avenue.

If time was wanted for that purpose he hoped that the gentleman from Missouri would frankly say so. [Laughter.] If the gentlemen on the other side were in grave doubt how they should comply with the sugge tions of the message; if after they had made up their minds in the interest of moderation and reform, and the most advanced of them would be content with the destruction of a few of our industries, and they needed time to select those they saw fit to destroy, that would be ground for this motion, and he hoped the gentleman would say if that was the reason underneath.

Mr. Hatch said he had hoped that he could yield the floor to the gentleman from Maine, without that gentleman from Maine, without that gentleman from Maine, without that gentleman from maine. He did not think that the gentleman had improved it much because he had made the same old speech. If the gentleman had not had opportunity, time and again, during the forty-ninth congress to vote for the consideration of the tariff bill, and had not always voted against it, there might be some sincerity in his talk to day. [Applause ] Time and again the democratic side of the house had tendered to the other side an opportunity to reduce taxation and the surplus in the treasury, but the gentleman from Maine, by his voice and his vote, had aiways stood, as leader of his party, to resist it. The democratic side would give the gentleman an early opportunity to ventilate his views on the tariff, if he wished to.

Mr. Reed—Why not now?

Mr. Hatch.—The gentleman knows why not now, and the gentleman knows that that is claptrap. Until the committee on ways and means is appointed and bills are sent to that committee, the gentleman knows that there can be no fair consideration of the gentleman from Maine. He did not think that there had been such a sudden conversion since the time of Saul of Tarsus. [Laughter.] He did not know why the gentleman should urge upon the speaker the immasture making up of commit. Mr. Hatch said he had hoped that he could tees. The house was without rules, and it had no committee framed for the consideration of the reduction of the tobacco tax. In a matter of so much consequence, the house should give to the speaker the same opportunity which had been accorded other speakers. It was known that the treasury had a plethora which paralyzed the channels of trade and hurt the farmer and artisan, and that there must be some relief; and it came with little grace from the gentleman from Maine to make this sinister and ironical and sarcastic objection to the message of the president. He could recall the time when the most eminent men on the other side of the house had insisted upon a reduction of the tariff to prevent the accumulation of a surplus. Among the rest had been the gallant man from Maine with the white plume. Among them had been Frye and Hale, insisting on a reduction of the tax on salt and other articles, except lumber. [Laughter.] He would like to see every man in the house regard this facal question as outside of politics. It was a business question in every sense of the word.

Mr. Cox said there were members of congress from republican states, like Minnesota, demanding a reduction of taxes, but this could not be done by picking out one article. It must be general—it must be stable and permanent. He hoped that when the tariff bill was considered, all parties would unite and act for the best interests of the whole people, and not for the aggrandizement of one man, or one set of men, or one party. [Applause.]

Mr. Mills, of Texas, offered as a substitute for the aggrandizement of one man, or one set of men, or one party. [Applause.]

Mr. Mills, of Texas, offered as a substitute for Mr. Hiatch's resolution, a resolution declaring that when the two houses adjourn on Thursday, December 22nd, they stand adjourned instil Wednesday, January 4th.

Mr. Hatch accepted the substitute, and the resolution, as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. Townshend, of Illinois, offered a resolution providing that Monday next shall be voted to the introduction and reference bills and resolutions.

This resolution gave rise to some distance and the returned from the printing office in time to be referred to the committees when appointed—while its opponents contended that the introduction of bills before the announcement of committees would lead to great confusion and delay.

Mr. Randall suggested that the resolution be

Mr. Randall suggested that the resolution be laid over until Monday, on which day he understood the committee on rules would be appointed. This resolution met with favor and the resolution was accordingly laid over.

A resolution was acordingly laid over.

A resolution was adopted for the payment of monthly salaries of employes of the house on December 22d.

December 22d.

Mr. Blanchard, of Louisiana, offered a resontion expressing the regret with which the house has heard of the death of E. W. Robertson, late member elect to the 50th congress from Louisiana, and then, as a mark of respect to the memory of deceased, the house, at 12:45, adjourned until Monday.

LAND GRANT DECISIONS. The Case of the Alabama and Chattanooga

Washington, December 16.—Acting Secretary Muldrow today rendered a decision in the case of the Alabama and Chattancoga Railrad company vs. Nathaniel P. Clabourn, on appeal by the railroad company from the decision of the general land office. The decision affirms the commissioner and holds that the homestead entry made in November, 12., on land included in the indemnity both grant in aid of plaintiff's road must be stained finder the act of April 21, 1876; such entry having been made "by permission of the land department after the expiration of the grant." The act of April 21, 1876, is construed, to mean, that, so far as concerns lands covered by entries otherwise regular, prior actual "expiration of grant" by the lapse of time shall be deemed to have revoked the withdrawal, even though such "expiration" may not have been decided and insisted on as a ground of forfeiture, as to such lands; that is to say, the act of 1876, is itself a WASHINGTON, December 16 .- Acting Secre

While it may be presumed, says the secretary, that there is but a small amount of any of vacant unappropriated lands within the indemnity limits of these roads, the fact that the withdrawal still remains in force renders this order necessary to a final settlement of grants.

The Excitement Over the Defalcation of Joseph C. Knight.

PHILADELPHIA, December 16.—The defalca PHILADELPHIA, December 1c.—In detalcation of Joseph C. Knight, the trusted clerk of the Manufacturers' National bank, was the principal topic of conversation in financial circles today. Bank officials were particularly interested. It was the regular discount day interested. It was the regular discount day at the banks, and the directors spent a portion of the time in discussing the defalcation. The news appeared to have aroused them and they were more vigilant than usual. As one of them aptly remarked, "it is a regular house cleaning day at all banks." In some cases the directors overhauled the books in order to satisfy themselves that the accounts were correct.

overhauled the books in order to satisfy themselves that the accounts were correct.

President Mobley, of the Manufacturers' bank, was apparently unconcerned over the defalcation. "This is a bad thing," he said, "but it will not affect us. We have a surplus of $175,000 and a capital of $985,000, and although the loss is heavy, we can stand it. The extent of the defalcation was generally known but some of the depositors became frightened and appeared early and demanded their money. All payments were promptly made and we are prepared for any emergency."

THE SICK SENATOR.

Charles F. Jones, Florida's Late Senator, 'n a Pitiable Pilght.

Detreoit, Mich., December 16.—The troubles of the brilliant ex-Senator Charles F. Jones, of Florida, which have been in a lethargic state for a short time, are brought again to public attention today by the announcement that he has been requested to leave the house of his charitably disposed friend, Detective O'Neil, this week, so that he will soon be virtually on the town. Jones was taken to O'Neil's house to keep him from stopping in hotel corridors, and he seemed settled there for life. His continued refusal to do anything to aid himself turned all his friends against him, and the host's patience ran out. Jones was told he must leave by Saturday. Thus deprived of sleeping quarters, he was also informed at the restaurant where he has been living that his credit will be exhausted on Saturday night. What he will do he will not indicate, but his friends say they will now starve him to his senses unless some foolish frinds help him out. Both of Senator Jones's sons have left the city sick of trying to arouse him from his indolent state.

gates to the convention of the republican clubs began to file into Chickering hall today, it was remarked that they wore a more confident air than yesterday, when the battalions were disordered and headless. The idea of a federation of clubs centralized and obedient to the touch of a directing hand was before every eye. They were now in shape to carry out the purpose of the convention. Committees appointed yesterday had been at work last night, and rules of order had been framed, and Mr. Evarts had been nominated for permanent chairman. Other matters had been arranged chairman. Other matters had been arranged by other committees and everything should go smoothly, but how the high spirits, and in some cases, the turbulence of members could be held under restraint, remained to be seen.

Among the first to arrive and take position on the platform was the temporary chairman, Daniel J. Ryan.

The members came in slowly. Three of the committee had appointed a sub-committee to report at nine o'clock, a. m., at the meeting of the general committee. Reports from these had to be received and perhaps canvassing had to be done. The Ohio men did not remain out, however, today until other delegations were however, today until other delegations were nearly full in their positions. A busy day was before them. Three sessions had been decided on for today's business—morning, afternoon and evening.

The order of business seemed to be the call-The order of business seemed to be the caliing of the convention to order by the temporary chairman, report of the committee on

Then the permanent chairman, Senator

Evarts, will take the chair, and address the convention. After that reports of committees on resolutions and on permanent organization of state leagues will be received and acted upon. The real business of the convention will be then entered upon and with a zeal that the present indications say will be overflowing. The meeting was to open at 10 a. m., but half an hour afterwards there was no signs of coming to order, except that the temporary chairman, Hon. Daniel J. Ryan, had been buried in the big center chair—he being a little man—for about half an hour.

About 10:45, the convention was caffed to order by Hon. Daniel J. Ryan. The chairmen of the different committees appointed yesterday them made their reports. Senator Chandler led off with a report of the committee on rules and order of business. The chairmen of the other committees then followed with reports.

men of the other committees then followed with reports.

Meanwhile trouble was brewing among the big Pennsylvania delegation, and for some time there was danger of a serious split in its ranks. By a mistake yesterday, Mr. Warren, of Scranton, and Captain Thornton, of Philadelphia, were both appointed by the chairman of the Pennsylvania clubs as keystone representative on the committee of permanent organization of leagues. Friends of Mr. Warren claimed that I was distinctly understood that Captain Thornton was to resign in case there were only five committees instead of six, as some stated. The latter's friends denied this, and the delegation held a hot meeting in the gentlemen's room in the hall. It is decided by a vote of 40 to 18 that Mr. Wind was to be the man, although Captain Thornton had represented the delegation in the meeting of the committee last night.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, offered the following resolution, which caused a sensation:
Whereas, it is the opinion of this national convertion of the republican clubs that no man who, at any time, deronneed Abreham Lincoln, while he was president of the United States as a "buffon and clown," or who ever declared from his seat in the United States sea that no man should denounce Jefferson Davis as a traitor in his presence and go unrebuked by him, or who, in his official capacity, as secretary of the interior ordered that the flag of the United States should be displayed at half-mist on the o casion of the death of Jacobi T. compson, or who, as senator of the United States many years after the war refused to vote that the 13th and 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution are valid and binding, out hit to be appointed to, or hold the high office of in-tice of the supreme court of the United States; the ore—and long continued applause. He was introduced by the temporary chairman, Judge Ryan.

In his speech on taking the chair, Mr. Evarts congratulated the convention on its organization and said that its work would not interfere with any of the established organizations of the party. It would, like the "grand old party," never acknowledge that there could be choson a candidate greater than the party. The draft for a constitution for a national organization to be known as "The republican league of the United States" was presented. A president, three vice-presidents and a secretary and treasurar, are to be the officers. The organization is to be permanent.

The committee on resolutions presented a preamble and resolutions of extraordinary length, which covers the entire field of political controversy, past and present, since the birth of the republican party. The entire proceedings of the convention have been similar to those of nominating conventions in nearly all respects, except that, according to the conditions of the call, it was stipulated that the convention should not name, recommend or nominate any candidate for office.

A draft for a constitution of national and state leagues was submitted and adopted. The draft declare the objects of the league are to encourage and assist formation of permanent republican clubs and to unite such clubs for effective and organized work.

A Reduction of Wages.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., December 16.—Bethle-BETHLEHEM, Pa., December 16.—Bethlehem Iron company today gave notice of a reduction of ten per cent on wages, to take effect January 1. The reason assigned is that the condition of trade, and the reduced price of rails to the market, make it necessary for this company to reduce the expense of manufacture. This reduction still leaves wages several per cent higher than before the advance of last winter.

PEORIA, Ill., December 16.—The executive committee of the great whisky trust has been in session in this city for several days, perfecting final arrangements by which the whisky trust is expected to go into effect on the first day of January, 1888.

Adoption of a Constitution and Election of Officers.

Baltimorr, December 16.—The first matter that occupied the attention of the American Federation of Labor this morning was a letter from the eigar makers' union of California, arging the convention to petition congress to adopt some measures that will effectually put an end to the importation of Chinese cheap labor. The letter was ordered to be spread upon the minutes. Discussion as to the best method of financially supporting strikes, resulted in the adoption of a clause enforcing an assessment of five cents per week per member; said clause, however, not to become a law until it has received the sanction of minor organizations. It was decided to reduce the per capita tax for the support of the federation from one-half to one-fourth of one cent per month on all members in good standing of minor organizations, and an annual tax of $25 on all state federations.

At the afternoon session there was a great deal of warm debate on points of parliamentary sectics, and at one time President Gumpers felt compelled to ask Delegate McSweeney, of the shoe lasters, to relieve him, but finally the constitution was adopted, and Professor B. T. Ely, of Johns Hopkins university, was given an opportunity to deliver a brief address. He spoke on the advantages of united action and of the recent awakening of public interest in the condition of the laboring classes. He depreciated strikes, and advised moderation in of the recent awakening of public interest in the condition of the laboring classes. He depreciated strikes, and advised moderation in dealing with non-union men, many of whom he declared to be honest and worthy men.

The report of the finance committee showed the accounts of the federation to be in good order, and that the dues of affiliated bodies were not paid up as promptly as could he desired. It was adopted. It was voted to be inacpedient to send delegates to the tradesumions congress, to be held in London next year, but the national and international labor organizations were recommended to be represented in that body. In view of the rapid advancement in the perfecting of labor-saving machinery; and the consequent decrease in the number of workmen employed in many industries, it was resolved that efforts be made to secure the enactment, by congress, of laws that will reduce the hours of labor. The committee on the growth of the order reported that

The committee on the growth of the order reported that the rapid growth of the order resulted from a combination of circumstances—first, the avowed purpose of the federation to allow each trade to preserve its autonomy, or govern itself; second, to the discontent of the Knights of Labor, and the bad management of their affairs and disastrous strikes of recent date. The committee recommended the utmost resistance to the encroachments of the Knights of Labor, inasmuch as that order had shown itself opposed to the principles of trades-unionism. The report of the committee was adopted amid a considerable show of enthusiasm.

The convention then proceeded to the election of officers, and the following were elected, by-acclamation: President, Samuel, Gompers, of New York, representing the International Cigar Makers union inst vice-president, Daniel McLaughlin, representing the Illinois Miners' association: second vice-president, William Martin, of the Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers' association; secretary, P.J. MR. POWDERLY VERY SICK. He Has Several Hemorrhages-What His Physician Says.

Scranton, Pa., December 16.—Grand Master Workman Powderly's condition has not improved during the past twenty-four hours and the belief exists that he is much worse has is relatives and attending physicians desire to make known to the public. Intelligence from the bedside of the labor chief has been unsatisfactory for two reasons. In the first place, reporters have been loth to annoy members of the household by frequent visits and pressing questions, which could have no other result than causing pain and distress where grief already rests heavily. The physician in the case, Dr. W. E. Allen, has, therefore, been relied upon chiefly for information concerning the sick man, and the secretiveness which is generally characteristic of members of the medical profession has been a formidable barrier to the inquisitiveness of men of the press, who have taken Dr. Allen's off-hand statement concerning Mr. Powderly's condition as an indication that the patient's illness is of a trivial nature, and that complete recovery is only a question of a day or two. The fact of the matter is that Physician Says. and that complete recovery is only a question of a day or two. The fact of the matter is that of a day or two. The fact of the matter is that he is in a critical condition, and has been so since his arrival here last Tuesday. Yosterday the symptoms were alarming, another severe attack of hemorrhage having set in, which continued with distressing effect until early this morning. Dr. Allen says this morning that Mr. Powderly is suffering great pain, a result of the rupture of a small blood vessel, but that if he remains quiet for a few days and gets rest, he will probably recover. Thomas O'Reilly, president of the telegraphers' union, who came here at the instance of the general executive board, and who was to have returned to his home today, will, owing to the condition of the master workman, remain in this city until next Monday.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT SUED.

The Tortolita Gold and Silver Mining Company Ask Damages.

New York, December 16.—The Tortolita Gold and Silver Mining company has brought suit in the supreme court against James Gordon Bennett for alleged libel, claiming $500,000 damages. The company was organized under the laws of the state of New Jersey. Its mines are in Arizona, and it has offices in this under the laws of the state of New Jersey. Its mines are in Arizona, and it has offices in this city. It was capitalized at $1,000,000, divided into two dollar shares, which were extensively advertised and sold. The complaint against Mr. Bennett is based upon an article published in the New York Herald, in which it was asserted that the Tortolita mining scheme was a "colossal bunko scheme." That instead of being worth $50,000,000, 'the mines have been a failure from the start; they have paid no dividends, and when yielding the largest amount of ore they bankrupted their owners and were sold at a sheriff's sale for $15,000."

It is alleged that such publications made by the defendant "did so injure, depreciate and destroy the sales of the shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff as to render it impossible to make scarcely any sales whatever of the same," and "that the plaintiff has suffered actual pecuniary loss and damage to the sum of $500,000."

Joseph H. Reall, president of the company, has brought suit in the same court, individually, against James Gordon Bennet for alleged libel, claiming $250,000 damage. His complaint is based on the same publication, which, he says, created the impression "among plaintiff"s acquaintances and the public that the plaintiff was running a dishonest enterprise, and was swindling people out of their money by selling them worthless mining the plautiff was running a dishonest enter-prise, and was swindling people out of their money by selling them worthless mining stock," and thus damaged him to the amount claimed. It is asserted in both complaints that the Herald's publication was untrue, and that the mines were as represented by the company and its officers.

CHATTANOGA, Tenn., December 16.—[Special.]—John Watson, a fireman on the Cincinnati Southern railroad, was instantly killed at 9 o'clock this morning in this city. He stepped off of his engine to see what was wrong with one of the cylinders, when a Western and Atlantic train came along on the track along the side of the Cincinnati Southern track, and struck him, knocking the whole-top of his head off. explosion of an eighty-horse boiler, in the Ed-ison electric light company's works, this after-noon, caused the death of five persons and the injury of three others. About a quarter to four o'clock the fireman had just put on fresh fuel, and had closed the last door, when the boiler, which was one of a series of four, exploded. The boiler was lifted from its foundations and propelled some thirty feet from its location, passing through the base of a newly erected ninety feet high stack, which instantly fell. Superintendent Walter Embree was engaged with a force of men close to the stack underneath the new boiler, and the whole party was buried beneath the falling bricks. Rescuing parties were immediately organized and the bodies of Embree and Elwood Beeke, a laborer, were taken out in about an hour. Edward Schofield, a laborer, who was badly scalded by steam from his waist downward. William Allison, a laborer, and William H. Richardson, foreman, were found still alive, though more or less injured. Hettie, the ten year old daughter of William Jones. who was returning from school at a point distant almost a square from the seene of the explosion, was almost instantly killed by a flying beam. Large pieces of iron were thrown great distances and in descending passed through the roofs of houses and much damage was inflicted on the residence of James C. Phipps, nearly opposite the electric light works, and all property in the vicinity, suffered to some degree. It is though that all the bodies have not yet been recovered, and a large force of men, is tonight, digging over the ruins by lanternlight. The streets are enveloped in darkness and great gloom prevails though the borough.

In accordance with the provisions of the bill, most of the socialist members of the reichstag my be expelled from Germany. The bill also permits the punishment of any one taking part in the socialist congress.

The reichstag discussed the military bill today. General Von Schellenderf, minister of war, contended that it was necessary to extend liability to service in the landstern to the age of forty-five years. A distinction is to be made between trained and untrained men. All speakers, excepting one, supported the project. The bill was referred to a committee.

THE SYMPTOMS NOT ALARMING.

Doctor Mackenzie's Report on the Crown Prince's Condition.

SAN REATO, December 16.—The new growth which made its appearance in the throat of the crown prince, is not of a cancerous nature. It causes no difficulty in breathing. No operation is deemed necessary at present. The right side of the larynx is wholly sound.

Dr. Mackenzie states that he considers the appearance of the crown prince's throat better than when he examined it in the beginning of November. It is true a small growth has than when he examined it in the beginning of November. It is true a small growth has formed higher up in the throat, but it has not the malignant appearance of the growth which appeared toward the close of the crown prince's stay at Riveno, but which has since diminished, the swelling of glands having entirely disappeared.] Dr. Mackenzie is about to make a professional visit to Algiers. He will return afterwards to San Remo. He would not go to Algiers if he considered the crown prince's case urgent.

M. Edwards, manager of Le Matin, fought a duel with M. Mayer, manager of La Lanterne. Both were slightly wounded. In the chamber of deputies, today, General Logerot, minister of war, asked a military credit of eleven million francs, and was supported by the budget committee.

The chambers, however, by a vote of 295 to 225, adopted an amendment by M. Brice, granting only four million francs. No Demonstration Allowed. LONDON, December 16.-The Law and Liband Liberty league proposed to make a demonstration Sunday, in honor of Linnell, who it is alleged, died from the effects of injuries received in the charge of the mounted police during the recent rioting in Trafalgar square, but the police authorities have issued an order forbidding that any display be made.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., December 16.—The committees of the northern and southern general assemblies of the Presbyterlan church of America, appointed at the last annual session, to confer upon the subjects of organization and the issues dividing the two branches of the church, concluded their meeting tonight. The sessions were secret, but it is understood that adjournment took place without any definite action having been agreed upon. Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Wilson, of the southern church, who was made secretary of the conference, stated that another joint session of the commission would be held before the general assemblies convened next May. The time and place, however, have not been determined upon, and members of the committees declined to state the reasons for adjournment, without having settled upon a recommendation to the general assemblies, but the natural inference is that they were unable to dispose of some questions at issue.

SHE STOOD THE TEST.

Successful Trial Trip of the New Cruiser

"Chicago."

Glencove, L. I., December 16.—The steel cruiser Chicago was subjected to the contract trial for horse power on Long Island sound today, and, from the latest information at hand, it appears that her performance exceeded all expectations. Beginning at 9:30 the engines were kept at full speed for six consecutive hours, without interruption of any kind.

The mean revolutions per minute were 693 and the horse power exceeded that called for in the contract. Members of the advisory board, who accompanied the ship, express satisfaction at the results attained. From all information obtainable, it is certain that in the Chicago the navy has a vessel fully up to modern requirements. The speed attained was slightly in excess of 153 knots an hour. The boiler furnished all the steam required without the use of a forced draught. The Chicago will return to Brooklyn navy yard to-morrow.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Growing Confidence Causes an Improvement
—Failurer for the Week.

New Yorn, December 16.—R. G. Dun &
Co'.s., review of trade for the week says:

There is a clear, though moderate, inprovement in the commercial and industrial ortholo, mainly due to growing confidence, mentioned in reporta from several interior cities, that congress will flually do nothing prejudicial to the business interests. At the same time if is in many points observed that uncertainty in regard to the action of congress tends to restrict purchases, and contributes to weakness in some markets. Momentary anxlettes diminish, and speculation on produces abates.
The iron production, by many considered reliable barometers of business, fails a little below the unprecedented output of November 13th. The output becomber 13th was 140,040 tons weekly, according to New York returns, about 1,600 tons smaller in bituminous and coke iron, and a little smaller in anthractic and charcoal iron, than the cutput a month are.
Pittsburg returns make the decrease 4,087 tons for the month, Some furnaces have also stopped work since December 1st. Southern competition, though real, is not extensive and is mostify due to manuclai necessities in one district. A force of wider influence is the scanty demand for rails and consequent increase in the production of foundry from by turnaces hitherto emaged in making bessemer. It is held that new sales of rails for the next year do not yet aggregate more than 100,000 fons, and large buyers still hold off. The statement that a single sale was made on terms netting $31, is questioned, and transactions, aggregating 22,00 tons, are reported at $32. Bar iron is less strong and some mills are rounning on short time, but nails appear fruier

Flue wools are quiet, and medium wools stronger, though sales at low flughres by weak parties are still mentioned. Growers express confidence that no reduction of duties will be made, and the manufacturing demand does not answer expectations. The Foreign trade improves, exports of more important products exceeding those for the same month last year by $1,478,000, imports at New York increased $3,476,000. Though figures and the course of foreign exchange indicate that foreign capital still moves to this country rather than out of it, the spock market has declined on an average about seventy centager share, and grows dull. Earnings continue good. A general agreement as to dressed beef rates has been reached and an advance in export rates in promised, but the public takes but little part in trading and the operation of the interstate act tends stendily toward a reduction of rates at the west.

DANCED IN THE BLOOD.

A Horrible Story Reported From Henry County, Alabama.

County, Alabama.

Montgoher, Ala., December 16.—A special to the Advertiser, from Eufanla, tells of a horrible murder in Henry county, Ala. Bradley Johnson, ex-sheriff of that county, is one of the oldest and most respected citizens. Thursday, two of his sons got drunk, and at night, in cold blood, butchered an older brother, named Charles, aged 27. The murderers are aged 18 and 20 respectively. The old father, when he went to his murdered son's rescue, was made, by the two younger sons, to kneel on the floor and beg for mercy.

Their old mother came into the room and tried to separate them. She was knocked in the head by her sons and horribly bruised. Their brother-in-law and another brother, Ben, also drunk, were made to leave the house. A neighbor came and discovered what had happened, and spread the news abroad. When the two murderers found their brother was dead, one whistled and the other danced in his blood. The surrounding country is greatly excited, and the latest news is that lynching is almost certain. The victim was asleep when his brothers, Robert and John, began their murderous work.

THE GUIDES SHOT DOWN. A Terrible Tragedy Reported From Marion County, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., December 16.—[Special.]—Deputy Revenue Collector Tutwiler, of this city, returned today from a raid in Marion and Franklin counties, where he destroyed two illicit stills. He brought the first news received here of a terrible tragedy which occurred in Marion county last Saturday. About one month ago a party of revenue officers made a raid in Marion county, and were guided to several stills by two young farmers named Bannister and Terrell. Last Friday night these young men were on their way to meet the revenue officers, to again serve them as guides. They spent the night at a farm house, and next morning found their mules gone. They started in pursuit of the animals, and when only a few hundred yards from the house, both were shot down by men in ambueh. I a nister was instantly killed, two loads of buckshot taking effect in his body. Terrell is still alive, but is dangerously wounded. A load of buckshot struck him in the back and one shot lodged in his spine, and he is paralyzed in every limb. It is not known who did the shooting, but there is strong circumstantial evidence against the desperate moonshiners.

"As per your request I will give you a statement of my farming operations. In the first place I run eight plows. I have ginned and packed 222 bales of cotton, and am satisfied my crop was damaged to the extent of forty or fifty bales by the freshet in August, and the drought that followed of two months, causing the loss of the top crop. I housed something over 2,800 bushels of corn. Harvested 1,200 bushels of cats and pastured 75 acres that I did not have time to cut. Put up 15,000 or 20,000 pounds of fodder, 300 bushels of optatoes (sweet), from 30 to 100 bushels ground peas, two barrels of syrup. My cane and cow peas were a failure, owing to the fall drought. I planted $100 worth of watermelons, besides what we consumed and gave away. The above includes all of my crops of any importance. I farm on the intensive system, upon which the future prosperity of the country depends."

SAVANNAH, Ga., December 16.—[Special.]—A notorious divoice suit comes to an untimely end this morning. Mrs. Viola Patterson, by her her attorney P. J. O'Conner, dismissed her libel against her husband James Patterson. Mrs. Viola is a very pretty young woman, and she says she has been very badly slandered. Among the allegations the libel stated that the defendant had caused to be circulated about the defendant false and scandalous reports of her adultery with Policeman Roach on November 29, 1886, and had thereby caused her great mental anguish and wounded her her great mental anguish and wounded her feelings so that it was impossible to longer live with him and endure such cruelty. Patterson and his wife were married on September 22, 1885. The libel was filed December 3, 1886. The first trial of the case ended in a disagreement of the jury. It is possible that Mr. Patterson wronged Viola, his dutiful wife, but as he detected Policeman Roach escaping from his wife's apartments wrapped in a blanket at a late hour of the night, he was justified in some slight suspicion. He was so suspicious that he pursued Roach He was so suspicious that he pursued Roach down! Bay street. The policeman crouched in a dark corner, but the noble guardhm of the peace, who still is continued on the force, was discovered and plead for his life, as Patterson cooled his brow with a pistol. SOMEWHAT SENSATIONAL, Dr. Haygood's Son Thought to be Too Fond of Music.

SAVANNAH, Ca.. December 16 .- [Special.]young Haygood, son of Attieus G., and Miss Mary Rogers, formerly of Covington, on yesterday, has given rise to some very sensational statements in the morning paper. It is there stated that Colonel O. T. Rogers, with his family, had fled from Covington by the fore yesterday. Rogers, with his family, had fled from Covington day before yesterday, to escape from Dr. Haygood and his sen; that Dr. Haygood thereupon accompanied his boy to Atlanta, and procured the services of Rev. Dr. Lee to assist young Haygood in clandestinely wedding his love, despite the parents' objections. As a matter of fact Colonel Rogers has been state inspector of naval stores here for eight years, and removed his family to Savannah two weeks ago in accordance with a desire long entertained to have them with him. The Rogers family did not encourage young Haygood, as they thought his fondness for music was weaning him from employment that might be more profitable and suitable.

Yesterday afternoon, in the presence of quite a company, the ladies of our town and community expressed ima beautiful and very becoming way their appreciation of the efforts of Messrs. James A. Harley and Thomas M. Hunt in the part they took as counsel for the prohibitionists in the late contest in our county. This they did by an address, signed by a very large number of them and accompanied by collections of exquisite and rare flowers. This address was read by Miss Ruth Pierce and replied to in a very fitting style by Mr. Harley. The flowers, the address and the presentation were all in that excellent taste which ever characterizes the words and acts of the women of Hancock when they give expression to any of Hancock when they give expression to any of those beautiful sentiments by which their lives are admired.

NOTES FROM LIBERTY. The Progress of the County From the Descamiss.

This section, which was until recently the seat of culture, wealth and refinement, has passed through very trying times, and has but partially recovered yet from the demoralization occasioned by war. But in some respects long strides have been taken in the right direction. The agricultural interests in general are improving; planters are putting under cultivation a smaller acreage, and making the lands more productive, and are more inclined to make their supplies of corn, bacon, etc., and cotton as a surplus crop. Formerly they planted cotton almost to the neglect of breadstuffs and hence were kept poor in consequence. Their rice crop has bethe neglect of breadstuffs and hence were kept poor in consequence. Their rice crop has become quite an important factor in their prosperity. From forty to sixty bushels per acre can be produced at comparatively a small cost, and at present prices a handsome profit is realized and this is also the case with sea island cotton; an average size bale can be produced per every two acres without much outlay of expense for fertilizers, and this is worth from $80 to $05.

Fruits are being cultivated also and some of Fruits are being cultivated also and some of our planters realize a considerable profit from this source. The Leconte pear yields handsome returns even when sold at comparatively low prices. We have transportation, both by rail and water, for the products of the farm and factory, and some of our truck farmers have their boats to come to their homes and take the melons, beans, etc., direct from the gardens to the makets. The colored people are improving their condition each year. They have good schools, churches, etc., and seem to be much inclined to better their condition. There is one school numbering two hundred and fifty scholars, taught by intelligent northern ladies assisted by Rev. Floyd Snelson, a graduate of the Atlanta colored institute. They have done much to enlighten and elevate those who gome under their influence. There is also another large and thriving institution of learning conducted by Rev. Mr. Waite, at old Midway. Perhaps 150 scholars is an average attendance at this school, and the improvement of his pupils every way is very noticeable. We think these things are hopeful indications of the approach of a season of prosperity and happiness long desired for this once highly favored region which was noted among other things, for having sent forward more educators and ministers of the gospel than any other portion of the state according to population, and hope the day is near at hand when all the grand old places which were formerly homes of the wealthy and cultured planters of ante-bellum days, will again be occupied by those who will be fit successors to those noble old men who have gone the way of all the living. Fruits are being cultivated also and some o of the assertion that the great car works of the United States Rolling Stock company, at Urbana, Ohio, will be removed to Decatur, Ala.

There can be no further question on the point.
The south is to be congratulated on the acquisition of such enterprises as it proves that her

This company, it is estimated, will employ over 1,000 men in the manufact r: of railway cars for supplying southern railwads. Some Astonishing Yields Reported From Georgia Soil.

THE LUCKY WINNERS OF PREMIUMS Offered by the Firm of G. W. Scott & Co-What Has Been Done by the Intensive System of Farming-Facts.

For the past five or six years, Messrs. George W. Scott & Co., have been offering special premiums for the largest yield of cotton and corn, by the use of gossypium alone. The effect has been to stimulate the planters of the state to adopt the intensive system of farming, and to demonstrate by facts and figures that farming pays. The premiums offered are lib-eral, and the regulations fair and just. The award is not made upon the amount of gossypium used per acre.

The contestant is required to certify that no The contestant is required to certify that no other fertilizer was used, and to give all the facts about the culture of the land, its condition, etc. A committee of three citizens, certified to by the ordinary as reliable citizens capable of making an accurate report on a crop of cotton or corn, must state that they are disinterested, that floy measured the plat of land whereon the crop was grown, according to the rules prescribed, the same being one connected piece of land, that they supervised the gathering of the crop, and carefully weighed and measured it. They report the yield of dry seed cotton and of dry lint cotton, clear of bagging and ties, the yield of shucked corn in the car, and how many pounds of slielled corn 100 pounds of average ears yielded, and an estimate of how many bushels of fifty-six pounds each of shelled corn.

CONSIDERING THE REPORTS.

The 15th of December is the day set apart for considering the reports, and awarding the premiums. There were three contestants for the premiums offered for the best yield of lint cotton on five acres, and twelve for that on one acre, and eleven contested for the premiums on the best acre in corn.

On Thursday morning several sturdy looking countrymen wended their way to the department of agriculture. All the contestants did not come, as, having implicit confidence in Commissioner Henderson, they wrote to him to represent them. R. G. Ray, a stalwart and successful farmer of Douglas, Mr. G. M. Davis, a worthy planter of Monroe county, Messrs. J. F. Ellington, of Campbell county, J. T. Madaris, of Fayette, and others, were present. The contestants agreed upon the following as the committee on awarding the premiums: Colonel R. J. Redding, of Schley; Colonel W. S. De Wolf, of Muscogee; Captain J. F. BH. Refley, Henry county, 1470.

PHESENTING THE AWARDS.

Secretary DeWolf read the action of the committee and it was received with demonstrations of applause.

Farmer Ray as he received the $500 in gold, said, in a triumphant tone, "Who will say now that farming don't pay?"

"Another Man will be made happy in Campbell tonight," observed jovial Squire Ellington as he receipted for $100 for J. T. Mann. of Palmetto.

"Hurra for Sumter county," shouled Colonel R. J. Redding, as he enclosed an order for a ton of gossypium to Mrs. Laura Smallpiece, of that county.

Everything passed off to the satisfaction of all parties. Mr. O. L. Buffington, of Hall county, who in 1886 made 109 bushels of corn on one acre wrote that he had planted an acre this year, but that when in full reasting ease, the freshet swept it off. He wanted to be considered in for the contest of 1888.

Messrs Scott & Co. have not received the official report from the contest in South Carolina, but their reporter at Columbia gives the following as the result:

FOR FOUNDS OF LINT COTTON MADE OF LINT COTTON J. L. C. King, Oconee county, 1,035 pounds, second Miles P. Singleton, Pickens county, 1,019 pounds, Cain Forker, Greenville county, 1,002 rounds,

THE DOCTOR.

John F. Ward at the Opera House Last

Considering the inclemency of the weather, a very fair audience greeted John F. Ward in "The Doctor" at the opera house last night.

The play itself is a decidedly poor one, while the company is above the average. It is surprising that a company of the merit possessed by this ore should devote its talent to a play of no more strength than the one it is now engaged in presenting. It is intended to be a humorous play, but there is little humor in it and but little opportunity for a good comedian. The Higgins of Mr. Ward is supposed to be the leading character, when, in reality, it takes a secondary part in the cast. Mr. Ward has the credit of being a very funny man on the stage. He gave evidences last night, in one or two places where slight opportunity was offered, that he could play the part of the comedian well if he had a play which allowed him to do so.

The support is good, and notwithstanding the absence of any great hilarity on the stage, the audience went for a laugh, and seemed to enjoy the evening.

Let Mr. Ward and his company come next year evening.

Let Mr. Ward and his company come next year with a genuine funny play, and he will score a greater success.

"The Doctor" will be repeated at matinee today, and tonight.

IDEAL BROILING. Broiling can be done in the oven of the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door, more perfectly than over the live coals.

Lay the steak, chops, ham or fish on a wire broiler or meat rack, placing it in an ordinary bake pan to catch the drippings.

Allow it to remain in the oven with the door closed 15 or 20 minutes. No turning is required. At the end of this time it will be found nicely cooked ready to serve.

Thus is the ideal way to goalgas or make. the live coals. There is no taint of coal-gas or smoke, and the meats are more tender and better in flavor than those broiled over the coals. The convenience or broiling in the even will be appreciated by every house-keeper, and adds another to the many reasons why the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door should be preferred to all others now in the market.

A Crazy Congressman. Some states are to be pitled for the fee bleness of their representation in the nation al congress. It is sad to see a good state being publicly and continually paraded as the home and constituency of some misera-ble crank who is supposed to be its repre-sentative, and whose idiotic methods reflect ore discredit on his state than they work injury to himself.

Our sympathy goes out to Vermont for the injustice she is being done by the wild ass of a senator who is credited to her-one William E. Chandler, alias Bill Chandler, of electoral fraud notoriety. His public career has been one of corruption and partisan villiany, as a reward for which he was given a cabinet place under the man who stole the presidency by the scheming of Chandler and his gang. He was commissioned to capture the vote of Florida in '76, and the method in which he accomplished this will forever render his name odious to the American people. Party attachment will not cover infamy, and the exposures made by Chandler's tool, Sam McLin, on his death bed, will be remembered when the republican party is forgotten. Chandler succeeded in stealing the electoral vote of Florida in 1876, for which he has been rewarded, and now occupies, thanks to the republican bosses, a seat in the United States senate. He has just introduced in the senate a bill which indicates that, not satisfied with stealing a single state, he proposes to go into the business on a wholesale scale. His bill provides for the regulation of the congressional and presidential elections in the states of South Carolina, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi, by having them conducted by the president and the United States circuit judges, who are to have complete control of all matters relating to them, even the registration of voters.

This simply shows what a fool this same Chandler is. It was the hope of the country that when Riddleberger's term expired, the senate would be free from either idiots or asses, but unfortunately Chandler turns up and promises to eclipse Riddleberger's record. His bill is a monstrosity, but does credit to his diseased and polluted brain. The New Orleans Times-Democrat about sizes it, as follows:

Of course, Mr. Chandler has n : dea of passing the bill; it is uncon titional, absurd, and would be null and void if passed. Even if congress was re-publican in both branches and the president of the miry, we have no idea that they would act so silly as to endeavor to control elections in these south ern states, or be guilty of the unconstitutions 1 sec states. It is only as an evidence of the existence of a certain bitter spirit that we cite Mr. Chandler's bill. It is the spirit which prevailed in the days of reconstruction when legislation such as this was passed, and that this spirit still survives is shown every 10 v and then by men like Chandler, with bills of their kind.

A CONVENTION of republican clubs is now in session in New York. The first business of this able body appears to have been to fire a pop-gun at Lucius Lamar.

A Postal Telegraph.

We have read with considerable interest pretty much everything that our esteemed emporaries have said in opposition to a government postal telegraph, and it pains us to perceive that almost every argument advanced on that line is, in some sort, a misconception of the scope and purpose of

One says that Jay Gould would hold his wires at a very high price, but we have yet to discover what Mr. Gould and his lines have to do with the proposed government telegraph. Another says that the rights of the states would be invaded, but we fail to perceive what right the people of the state of Georgia would have to give up in order that they might be able to enjoy the privilege of a cheap telegraph system.

A postal telegraph is one of the necessi ties of the times, and if our public men had been as wise in statesmanship as they were in machine politics we should have had one long ago, for the telegraph, as a medium of letters and messages, is merely the result of the progress that sci ace and invention have made in this direction. The medium by which the message is carried has nothing whatever to do with the matter so far as the government is concerned.

We have no doubt that when the place of the stage-coach was taken by the locomotive, there were men, not to say statesmen. who argued that there was something wrong about the development. Why should the mails be carried by steam power when the stage-coaches were sufficient and otherwise

We may very well suppose that if the deelopment of the railways had come as rapidly as the development of the telegraph there would have been tremendous opposi tion on the part of the politicians. An argument used by the Chicago Herald is very apt in this connection. The Herald says that if the government builds a postal tele graph it will have to pay a large indemnity to Jay Gould. Such an argument is not worth considering, for it answers itself. How much indemnity did the people have to pay the owners of stage lines when they ferred their mails to the steam lines! As a matter of fact, there is no reasonable argument that can be offered against a government postal telegraph.

A WESTERN editor has written several columns to prove that Blaine is a chump. This is labor thrown away. Why not write three lines showing that many of the republican statesmen are rascals.

The Democrats and the Surplus. The Philadelphia Press, remarking that some statesmanship is needed just now, "The dilemma in which the governent finds itself in consequence of the treas ury surplus is one which could not have oc curred had the republican party been in continuous control of congress and the executive. It is a situation that could only result from the incapacity of the democratic party to deal with important questions promptly and de-cisively as they arose."

There is a good deal of truth in what the Press says, but it is not the kind of truth with which our contemporary hoped to impress its readers. We gladly confess that the democratic party is deficient in that peculiar sort of statesmanship which is a development rather than a feature of republi canism. It is undoubtedly true, as the Pressremarks, that the treasury surplus would not have been regarded as a dilemma by the republican party. Not at all. On the contrary, the professional statesmen who manage the affairs of that organization would have lost no time in making way with the surplus. In this matter they are experts, having had long experience in the art of getting rid of a dilemma occasioned by too large a supply of funds. In a performance of this kind they are as apt as the sleightof-hand fakirs who appear now and then on the stage

But the republican statesmen are more practical than the fakirs. The disappearance of things under their nimble manipulation is neither a trick nor an illusion. It is a genuine affair, as the people of this country have reason to know. The incapacity of the democratic party in this instance is due to the fact that the people's money has not been squandered. It is in the treasury, and it seems to be very "threatening" to the republicans. The Press is right. There would be no treasury surplus to pester anybody if the republican statesmen were in a position to get their hands on it.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

For some days past the newspapers hav devoted considerable space to the proceedings of the "Federation of Labor." an industrial organization holding a convention in Baltimore. It is said that this body represents 250,000 American workingmen, and great results are expected from its delibera ions, and the line of action favored by it.

The calm observer who has watched the rise and fall of these labor societies during the past quarter of a century will shake his head doubtfully. In all of these organizations an extreme element pushes its way to the front with the avowed object of downing capital. This is folly. Capital will not be downed. Even when a revolution rolls over it capital always comes out on top after the trouble is over.

The thing for labor to do is to go along in a friendly way, hand in hand with capital. Just how this is to be done may admit of argument, but some of the methods proposed by visionary reformers are hardly worth disassing.

A thoughtful workingman remarked the other day that one of the great evils of the age was "too much organization." He was more than half right. Forty years ago the American workingman was a very independent citizen. If he did not like his employer he left him and sought another When he could not secure work at high wages he took what he could get. When he wanted to organize he organized his family by apprenticing his boys. The only "Federation of Labor" that he knew any thing about was the little federation composed of himself and his wife. His "Antipoverty Society" was composed of his own

It must be admitted that the old system worked admirably. Men put in their ten or twelve hours a day, saved their money. bought homes, and gradually took their places among the capitalists of the land.

Under the present system the workingman owes allegiance to a society. He lose time attending its meetings and parading with it in public. He pays his money to it in the shape of dues. He stops work and goes to work when the society orders it. He society to force him to remain idle and starving at a time when he needs every cent that Another evil. Since the birth of these trades unions, knights of this and that, federations of labor, and anti-poverty societies. the old apprenticeship system is a thing of the past. The main thing now is not to train up a skilled workman in a shop, but to make an active and efficient recruit for the societies.

In all this may be seen one cause of the hard times of which so many classes of laboring men are always complaining. The way for the American workingman to better his condition is to stick to his work, live economically and put his money into a home. If he needs the aid of a federation. let him federate with an industrious and frugal wife.

The George W. Scott & Co.'s Returns From Alabama and South Carolina.

We print this morning the returns from premium acres of cotton and corn cultivated under the gossypium phospho competition for prizes offered by George W. Scott & Co.

It will be seen that the results achieved in Alabama and South Carolina are very much lower than in Georgia, though in Alabama one farmer comes very near the top with 2,391 pounds of lint cotton to the acre It was expected that the returns from each of the adjoining states would fall below the return of Georgia, for the reason that the system of intensive farming taught by this competition is tried for the second time this year in those states, while it is the fourth year of contest in Georgia. Alabama and South Carolina will come up in next year's contest, and Georgia will have to look to her laurels. We emphasize the fact that the returns from either one of the three states. and especially from the three states com-bined, show that farming in the south when properly done is a profitable business, and that in fertility our soils when properly treated equal the best soils of the north or west. These facts brought under this competition are irresistible, and demonstrate what we have repeatedly said in these columns that the competition induced by the premiums offered by George W. GRIER'S ALMANAC.

Famous Handbook and Its History-Hov Its Author Was Squelched by a Boy.

From the Wesleyan Christian Advocate. Among my first recollections was seeing my mother take down a copy of Grier's almanac, which was suspended by a string to the mantle piece, to see about the changes of the moon. Robert Grier, the maker of this wonderful almanac, was a very plain man who lived and died years ago in Butts county, During his life he made the calculation for the almanacs, and almost every family in Georgia at least had a copy of this almanac, and relied on it for much valuable information. He pre-tended to tell when it would rain, and many other things. He was considered a wonderful man. Al-though he has been dead many years, Grier's alma-nac still lives. After his death the calculations were made by Thomas P. Ashmore, until he failed, and now they are made by his nephew, Professor Otts Ashware one of the most intelligent advectors. Otis Ashmore, one of the most intelligent educator

Once it is said, Mr. Grier was riding along the road, when he came to where a boy was holding a calf by the ears, while his mother milked the cow. e rode up to make some inquiries about the road addressed the boy and said:

"My son, can't you open that gate for me, so I can go a near way through the plantation?"
"Yes," said the boy, "if you will get down and hold this calf, and if you don't mind you will get a good wetting before you go far." .

Mr. Grier rode off and opened the gate himself giv n; but little heed to what the lad said, for he looked above and saw no sign of rain. He rode on for several miles, and true enough the clouds began to gather, and soon it was pouring down rain, so to gather, and soon it was pouring about rain, so that Mr. Grier soon become thoroughly drenched. He was so auxious to know the weather sign that be rode back to inquire of the boy how he knew so well it was going to rain. He wanted to secure so important a weather sign. He found the boy and said:

"My son, I'll give you a silver half dollar if you will tell me how you knew it was going to rain." The little fellow promptly replied; "Dad's got one of old Grier's almannes, and he said it was not going to rain, and he is such an old liar about the weather, I knew it would rain." He had no idea he was addressing the old certifican himself. dressing the old gentleman himself.

Mr. Grier paid him the half dollar and rode off; mused at the poor opinion the boy had of him as an almanac maker. During the war we published Grier's almanac, with calculations by Professor T. P. Ashm from Mr. Ashmore, and had to have the calculation made by others. Dr. T. O. Summers was then sta tioned in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and we wrote him to get the professor of astronomy in the state universi-ty, to make us a set of calculations for the almanac. They were duly made, but when we come to examine them, there was nothing said about when it was going to rain. We wrote back to the doctor, and told him it was no use to publish an almanae that didn't tell folks when it was going to rain. The professor ridiculed the idea, and said it was all guess work, that nobody could foretell when it would rain.

We used his calculations, however, and the writer took an old almanac and file i in the spaces along, stating where to look for rain, frost, cold, etc. About midsummer I went out in the country, and stopping to dine with a brother he said: "Don't you make these almanacs?" taking down his Grier from the corner, But for me—I shall never pause to ask Which dog may be in the right; For my heart will beat while it beats at all, For the under dog in the fight.

my sun mark I can tell well enough how to set it."

We never caught on, however, to the idea exactly, but she knew all about it. About the first thing I did after getting home was to send her a ger It is wonderful how people all over this country still want Grier's almanac. Thousands are printed and scattered over the southern states, especially in Know-Nothings and Leaves the Party.

From the New York World.

Ex-Civil Justice J. C. J. Langbein, who has for years been a prominent member of the republican party in this city, has decided to renounce that party forever. He is a member of the twenty-second assembly district machine, and at the last election was the regular candidate for civil justice in the seventh district against Ambrose Monell, who was nominated by Tammany hall and the county democracy. Mr. Langbein was defeated, and he and his friends say that his defeat is due to the treachery and non-support of the republicans. It has been rumored at local political resorts that Mr. Langbein intended to resign from the republican party, and his announcement yesterday to a World reporter that the rumor was carrect will not, therefore, surprise the politicians.

Mr. Langbein said: "Yes, I am about to sever my connection with the republican party. I have been a republican ever since I had a vote; in fact, before I had a vote. I was a drummer-boy in the war and became a republican at the front, when I was only fourteen years of age. I represented the old twenty-first assembly district as a republican in the legislatures of 1877 and 1879, and was a republican civil justice to fill an unexpired term from 1880 to 1881 inclusive. I was a candidate for civil justice at the last election and was defeated. Why was I defeated? Because the republican dudes and republican knownothings voted against me, although I was the regular party candidate. The twenty-first district, M. The Rich Natural Resources of the Stat The Growth of Manufacturing-Protection Demanded.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., December 16 .- [Staff Correspondence.]—An evening spent with Dr.

J. M. Safford, the state geologist of Tennessee, shows him to be enthusiastic as to the resources of the state. The duties of the office are to Dr. Safford a labor of love, the state providing no remuneration for the services ren-dered. The doctor is one of the professors of Vanderbilt university.

The wealth of the state consists in its agriultural features, its iron ore and stone, coal and in East Tennessee, marble.

The western division of the state is, one of the best extron regions in the south, but not many minerals are found there. The central division, called middle Tennessee, has in her central portion a well defined basin, one hundred miles long by fifty wide. This is a region of great agricultural wealth, and is the garden spot of the state having Nashville in its center. The general floor of the basin is but little over 5, above the level of the sea. West of Nashville, and of this basin, and between it and the Tennessee river, is one of the great iron belts of the state. It is forty miles wide, and passes through the state from the Kentucky to the Alabama line. Within this area there were in blast before the war fifty furnaces. At this time there are not as many furnaces, but those which are in operation are of much greater capacity. All make charcoal iron, and some of them use charcoal made by the Pierce of them use charcoal made by the Pierce process, in which, in charring the wood, the volatile and liquid products are utilized. The coal at many points is being sides of the coalfields. Large portions of this territory have not yet been reached by rail-road, and in that but little mining is done. Variety is one of its great characte istics. It has granite mountains at its eastern end, with Canadian flora. It has a portion of the great Appalachian valley, in East Tennessee, and a due proportion of the great Allegheny coal field, with no less than three great iron fields. It has a basin of blue grass region, equal to that in Kentucky. In the western part she has a section of cotton lands equal to those of Mississippi, and much like them, to say nothing of the alluvial lands along the Mississippi, as good as any found in the south. It has granite lands, rich limestone lands, and mellow, siliceous lands, and a quota of alluvial bulks. Its agricultural products are exceed-ingly various. It has cotton in the southern part of west and middle Tennessee; tobacco in the north thereof; peanuts over a consider able area; buckwheat in the mountain re gions, and corn everywhere. The people are varied in character, like the surface of the country in which they live, and the products which they raise. The people of the mountains are in strong contrast with the people of the valleys. An East Tennesseean differs from a west Tennesseean. The East Tennesseean brags of mounnesseean. He was in plain view of every one in the room and as he stood when the attention of the crowd was drawn to him he presented a picture. Both hands were high above his head. His face wore an awful expression, one of great pain, while a stream of blood was dripping from his shoulder. Just where the blood stain started a knife handle could be seen protruding. The boy's cries attracted not only the attention of those in the billiard hall, but it attracted many from the rotunda. Among others it attracted captain Russell, the officer at the hotel, who quickly reached the boy. A glance showed the captain that the boy had been stabbed, and that the knife with which the stab had been made was still in the wound. Throwing one arm around the boy. Sumby halted when the officer laid a hand upon his shoulders, and looking up, said:

"Well, what's the matter?"

"What did you stab that boy for?" asked the captain.

"That one over there," answered Captain tussell, pointing towards the negro, now surounded by a large crowd.
"I never did it," remarked Sumby.
"Well, I'll just take you to police headquarers," said the captain. "and then investigate his thing."

Captain Russell led his prisoner to police headquarters and surrendered him to Station-housekeeper Foute, requesting his detention until the stabbing could be investigated. The captain then returned to the hotel, and from the boy heard the story. Sumby, it appears, had been drinking, and with some friends entered the washroom. As Sumby spoke he started off. The boy was bent upon securing the other five-cent piece and ol'oxirg Sumby out, made a demand every step for the money, Sumby started into the billiard saloon with the boy close behind him. As he reached the top step he wheeled around quickly and drove the knife blade into the negro's left shoulder, and without making an effort to draw the knife out walked hurriedly away. After hearing the boy's story Captain Russell had the wound dressed and then sent the boy home. But Sumby was not there.

Soon after Captain Russell surrendered Bumby to the officers, Stationhouse Keeper Foute went to supper, leaving the prisoner in charge of Patrolman Hudson. Immediately after the patrolman took charge of the prisoner, Acting Chief Couch instructed the patrolman not to release Sumby unless he could make a bond. Sumby was then sitting in the office, and Patrolman Hudson thought it useless to lock him up until Captain Russell returned. Before the captain came back, Patrolman Hudson's attention was diverted from the

Before the captain came back, Patrolman Hudson's attention was diverted from the prisoner for a few minutes, and during those few minutes the barber walked out of the office and left the building. His absence was detected in a few minutes and quite a number of officers made a search for him, but without success. When Captain Russell returned to the prison Sumby was gone, but the captain had with him the knife with which the boy was stabbed and surrendered it to the stationhouse keeper.

During his short detention at the prison, Sumby denied the negro's statement.

Why Mr. Brown Was Compelled to Give up His Chapel Street Business.

The publication in The Constitution of the trial and expulsion of three members of the colored Congregational church, has brought into prominence a rumor to the effect that a butcher named Brown, on Chapel street, had in a somewhat similar manner suffered at the hands of his prohibition neighbors.

The truth of the matter seems to be simply this:

About three weeks before the election day, November 26, Brown purchased from Mr. John Daniel, the well known butcher on Mitchel street, a small butcher shop on Chapel Street. The butcher, Mr. Brown, is a man of Very quit

AND THIS SUGGESTS ANOTHER QUESTION.
"The development of these industries," continued the colonel, as he readjusted his spectacles, "and the numbers of people coming to see what they have, and believing that they cannot prosper without some protection by a duty on imports, a great change has been made in the public mind upon this question. So far as Tennessee is concerned, it was always a tariff state, even before the war. The state was closely divided, but was generally carried by the whigs, and always upon the Clay doctrine of a protective tariff. The whigs under Mr. Clay then were what might be called protectionists. So far as the democrats were concerned in old times, they were somewhat divided on the tariff, but the best exposition of their position is to be found in Mr. Polk's Kane letter of 1844, recognizing fully what the democrats now claim—I mean both democrats and old whigs-that is, a revenue tariff so adjusted as to give protection to American manufacturers and laber. This sentiment is rapidly growing in both Tennessee and Alabama, and it is very certain that Tennessee cannot be carried on any free trade platform. The people here do not insist on protection to the extent advocated by the republicans, but they are going to insist upon the dectrine of the Chicago platform-that is, protection to the extent of the difference of wages in this and foreign countries. When Governor Taylor was elected he ran on this plank, and received an increased majority over that gained by Governor Bate in the election. At the state convention in 1884, the question was discussed for a day. Under a ruling of the chair, a decision adverse to the ariff by a majority of 20 in a convention of 1,100 votes, was sustained, although the delegates from Lincoln, sufficient to change the result, declared that they had voted under a misapprehension. The question in the convention, however, was between a proposition to declare directly in favor of protection to the extent indicated, or, on the other hand, to relegate it to the national convention, and by the ruling of the chair, it took the latter

'As to the president's message, he recognizes the dectrine of the party fully, as a loyal man is bound to do, and then goes on to state his private views, as he had a right to do. The action of the West Virginia legislature, fresh upon the reading of the president's message, in calling for the repeal of the internal revenue system, shows how the democratic heart is beating. Virginia and North Carolina will be lost to the democratic party unless they have relief from the tobacco tax."

This information was immediately telegraphed to George, who is at Jacksonville, but no answer has as yet been received from The Constitution's candidate.

At least the present indications are that way.

During the session, the council will elect, in addition to the commissioner of public works and his clerk, a full board of water commissioners. The fight force m al sioner and clerk is growing warmer each day and the candidates are working hard. In addition to the candidates already named, Colonel Girardy is in the race for commissioner of public works.

Heretofore the board of water commissioners has been composed of three members, selected without regard to their location in the city. Last summer, however, the legislature passed an act enlarging the membership to six, one from each ward. The race will be an interesting one. So far the candidates are: In the first ward Colonel G. street. The butcher, Mr. Brown, is a man of very quiet disposition, and seems to have taken little ar no interest in the great question which was just then agitating the minds of his male and female neighbors. It might be proper to add that these neighbors were, almost without a single exception, prohibitionists, and most of them were more or less decided in their views. It is even doubtful whether Mr. Brown was an anti. Mr. Akeridge, his next-door neighbor, had never heard him say a word on the subject, but thought that he was an anti, and Rev. C. C. Davis, pastor of Pierce church, and one of Mr. Brown's oldest and most confidential riends, thought that he voted the dry ticket, if he voted at all. But, it will be remembered, that Mr. Brown's neighbors were prohibitionists, and that of no doubtful or lukewarm character.

The rumor was to the effect that Mr. Brown's neighbors instituted a sort of boycott, the result of which was that Mr. Brown's finances suffered to such an extent that he was obliged to give up the business.

And now for the facts.

An old friend of Brown's, who was several years ago prominently connected with Evan's chapel, went to the butcher and in a friendly manner advised him to accommodate his views to that of his neighbors, and pointed out the fact that his business interests depended, to a greater or less extent, on the aforesaid accommodation.

A few days afterwards one lady in the neighborhood called to the lady living just across the street: "Oh, Mrs. L.—, do you know what the butcher man is?"

No, I am not certain, but I think he must be an auti-prohibitionist."

Then I shan't buy another speck of meat from him. I thought he was a prohibitionist."

The sentiment was not altogether repugnant to the other lady, and, as the reporter's informant put it, "the ladies soon just got so they didn't want to trade with him, and of course they stopped-trading with him."

balls were finding their way into pockets, and the players were laughing and talking in the Kimbail house billiard hall about six o'clock yesterday afternoon. Suddenly those who were playing dropped their cues and turned their faces to the northern side of the hall, hence came an agonizing scream, instantly followed by the thrilling remark:

"My God! he has killed me!" Standing upon the top step of the flight leading to the billiard hall was a negro boy about ten years of age. He was in plain view of every one in the room and as he stood when the attention of the crowd was drawn to him he presented a picture. Both hands were high above his head. His face wore an awful expression, one of great pain, while a stream of blood was dripping from his shoulder. Just where the blood stain started a knife handle could be seen protruding. The boy's cries attracted not only the attention of those in the billiard hall, but it attracted many from the rotunda. Among others it attracted Captain Russell, the officer at the hotel, who quickly reached the boy. A glance showed the captain that the boy had been stabbed, and that the knife with which the stab had been made was still in the wound. Throwing one arm around the boy, Captain Russell grabbed the knife-handle with his other hand, and with an easy pull, drew the blade out, at the same time asking: about ten years of age. THE LOGIC OF LAW.

The Homestead Laws of 1868 and 1877-the Supreme Court Defines Them.

The Homestead Laws of 1868 and 1877—the Supreme Court Defines Them.

In the supreme court yesterday morning several important decisions were rendered.

In delivering the decision of the court in the case of Johnson vs. Johnson from Bartow county, Chief Justice Bleckley said: "Where the mother died and left no personal property, it was no wrongful intermeddling for the heirs to take possession of the rents in kind due to the mother. They did not sell, convert or use them. In the spring of 1882 the mother disclaimed the title, and was therefore renting the property as the agent of her son. The rents were the property of the son and not of the mother." A motion was made in this case to dismiss the writ of exceptions. The chief justice on this point held:

"A judge of the superior court has no right to alter the will of exceptions. If he does so, and writes at the bottom, all crasions and interlineations made before signing, the writ will not be dismissed. The omission by the clerk of the superior court to sign the entry of filling is a defect that may be healed under section 4272 c of the code, and time for the healing will be granted to the end of the term if necessary. The motion to dismiss is denied and judgment affirmed.

In the case of Brown vs. the state from Whitfield county, the court affirmed the decision of the court below. Brown was indicted for assault with intent to murder, and pleaded that he had been tried by the mayor of Dalton for an assault (the assault on which the indictment was based) and could not again be jeopardized. To this the state demurred, and the court sustained the demurrer. Justice Blandford said, in delivering the opinion in this case:

"The jeopardy depr nds upon the defendant being acried before a court of competent jurisdiction acried the description of the court sustained the demurrer.

"The jeopardy depends upon the defendant being carried before a court of competent jurisdiction. this case:

"The jeopardy depends upon the defendant being carried before a court of competent jurisdiction. The 25th section of the act of 1874, consolidating the various acts relative to the government of Dalton, authorizes the mayor to investigate simple assults, affrays, riots, etc., but there is no indications that it confers upon him the power of a court. No jurisdiction was conferred. This 25th section is obnoxious to the constitution, and therefore void. The title of the act is different from the body, and it contains two subject matters. Brown was corried to a tribunal that had no jurisdiction, and acquited. The superior court had a right to indict him. Judgment affirmed."

Justice Simmons delivered the opinion in the case of the First National Bank of Chattanooga vs. Massingale. Massingale took a homestead under the constitution of 1868. In 1886 he took a new homestead under the constitution of 1877. Counsel contended that the adoption of the constitution of 1877 destroyed homesteads set apart under the constitution of tution of 1877. Counsel contended that the adoption of the constitution of 1877 destroyed homesteads set apart under the constitution of 1868. Justice Simmons said:

The adoption of the constitution of 1877 did not destroy homesteads set apart under the constitution of 1838. The homestead will exist as long as the family for whose benefit it was set apart exists. Massengale had no right to take out the second homestead, but he had a right to supplement the first homestead. But in supplementing it he must do so in conformity to law. He can supplement it up to the amount fixed by the constitution of 1877, but not up to that fixed by the constitution of 1878 Notice to creditors of application to supplement must be given. Judggment reversed.

The supreme court reversed Bartow superior court in the cases of Tumlin vs. Maxwell, and Maxwell vs. Hudgins & Tumlin. Maxwell sued Hudgins & Tumlin in the city court and Tumlin denied being a partner of Hudgins. The case was carried up to Bartow superior court on a writ of error from the city court. Under the constitution as a court of error. The superior court sits as a court of errors. Certiorari is a constitutional and statutory right, and section 5027 of the code and statutory right, and section 5027 of the code provides that cases must go up by certiorari. The legislature has no power to provide other modes, and this part of the act creating the city court of Barrow county providing for carrying up cases to Bartow superior court on writs of error is unconstitutional. The New Orleans Market. New Orleans, La., December 16.—[Special.]
Although Liverpool was two sixty-fourths better
New York was again disappointing. We have an idea that certain influences are at work in New York to depress the market there, either for the purpose of buying or else to keep prices down until "Liverpool advances nearer to a parity with ours. It remains to be seen whether they will be successful.
Our eable advices today say that Manchester is stronger than Liverpool and a boom in silver is expected, and that India and China are doing an extensive business. The advance in silver enabling them to pay more for goods, as their currency being on a silver basis, their exchange sells at a higher rate. Receipts at ports and interior being somewhat larger than expected, caused a decline here and in New York at close.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock was again very dull to lay, and fluctuations, except on two or three stocks, were confined to less than 1 per cent. There was some pressure from the bears in the morning hours, but the demand, limited as it was, was still sufficient to prevent any impression being made upon the list, and later in the day the buils obtained control of the market and advanced prices all along the line. Orders from London showed a better feeling on Americans and the only adverse influence was bearish dispatches from Chi-cago. Manhattan and Missouri Pacific sold on a dividend and the remainder were without feature cago. Manhattan and Missouri Pacific sold on a dividend and the remainder were without feature and call for no comment. The only feature of the morning's trading were comparative weakness of Richmond and West Point and strength of Northern Pacific. The general list was simply stagnant until the afternoon, when there was a little more animation, which, here were an interest of values. Lecker. however, was had at the expense of values, Lackawanna losing nearly a point. Most of the list was brought below the opening, but in the last hour there was more real buying than during the entire revious portion of the day, which had the effect of previous portion of the day, which mad the effect of again bringing prices to the best figures of the day, the close being dull but firm. The day's trading amounted to 147,000 shares. Most of the stocks are higher, though Manitoba lost 13% and Richmond and West Point preferred 1 per cent, but New Eng-land is up 13%. ...3,597,222 NEW YORK, December 16-C. L. Green & Co., in NEW YORK, December 16—C. L. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: Cotton certificates, though feverish all day, have been, on the whole, a trifle better supported, and the cost averaged higher. The influences were to be found in some disappointment regarding the run of port receipts, which run less than predicted, and the interior novement was also comparatively light, while from England came more or less cheerful advices, especially from Manchester. The selling was in consequence somewhat checked, and recent shorts inclined to cover, with some 6a7 points gained. Late in the day, however, the cable brought reports of a panicky feeling on the Paris bourse, and this caused a reaction, leaving rates only 16a2 points above last evening with the general tone casy.

ad a reed la'er in the day, this was attributed to the free buying of arrival; by the spinners, who thereby covered their yarn contracts. The bulls in Liverpool are making strong efforts to sustain prices. Our cables say that outside figures were paid for this purpose. There is a disinclination to believe in the market there, as it is thought that the movement is largely speculative and any reaction would bring the long cetton out for sale. The advance above the discovered by the former prices here. They vance abroad had itseffee; upon prices here. The opening though of the same was steady at a slight improvement upon the close, two points on the inside positions and one on the more distant, from this with an inactive market, prices advanced under the concerted buying of the few leaders till an appreciation of six points were realized. For-elgu telegraphic advices that the markets were uneasy on disturbing rumors of the relations between Austria and Russia, brought selling orders with the result of depressing priors. Sales of contracts against offerings of s, of cotton were made during against oferings of s, c. cotton were many auring the afternoon and speculators are undeeded in their views at the close. No abatement of the ef-forts to sustain the market can be discerned, but without the support there is no evidence of strength. The interior movement promises to be nearly equal to last year and operators are waiting for the shrinkage in receips which has been so free; y promised.

THE CHICAGO MARKET,

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce. Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, December 16—The light receipts of hogs today caused pork and lard to open strong on 'change this morning. May lard opened 10 cents higher at 8.15, and in the first flurry ran up to 8.224. May pork opened 15 cents higher at 15.73, and immediately advanced to 15.90. Country buying orders for both lard end ribs were numerous. Corn opened a trifle higher at 53%c for May on light receipts and May wheat opened unchanged at 53%c. Provisions and corn attracted nearly all the attention desired. Provisions and corn attracted nearly all the attention during the early part of the session: May pork dropped back to 15.67½—15.70c and the later ruled firm around 15.70@15.75, with a large business. May lard dropped back to 8.15 and subsequently advanced to 8.0. Shortly after 10 o'clock May corn, which had eased off to 53%c, was rushed up to 54%c and wheat followed, May sold up to 83%c. There was no further bulge in lard or pork, but pork held strong around 15.70 or a trifle above.

The following was the range in the leading futures in Chicago today:

"How do you do, Mr. Ozburn?"
"Oh, pretty good, Tom," answered the failer. "How are you?"
"I'm pretty fair, thank you," answered the prisoner, glancing at the small rope which was attached to his arms at the elbows.
"So you are back, Tom," said Mr. Ozburn "Yes, I'm back, and I believe I'm right glacto get back. You all have treated me mighty kind up here."
"How long are you going to stay with us.

Ozburn, taking down the bunch of keys.

"Well, I'd like to have it back, and to have my mattress put in there."

Mr. Ozburn entered the jail and in a short time had Woolfolk's mattress in the cell. Then Mr. Birdsong and Mr. Bassett entered the jail with the prisoner. After the main door had been closed Mr. Birdsong took a small key from his vest pocket and unlocking the handcuffs, removed them from the prisoner's wrist. As the irons were taken away Woolfolk twisted his hands a second, and then throwing them though the air, said:

"Oh, that feels better."

In a short time he was admitted to the prison hall, down which he walked to his old ceil. The cell doors were open with Mr. Ozburn standing inside them. The prisoner walked in, and then the jailer pushed the inner door to and locked it, and Woolfolk's liberty was such only as a ten by twelve cell will give. When the bolts were thrown forward, the prisoner turned his face toward the barred door, and placing his hands through the bars looked out. In a few seconds the prisoners who were enjoying their exercise in the hallway gathered about the cell door and began talking to the condenned murderer. Woolfolk spoke to those on the outside, answering their questions, except such as pertained to his case. Such questions he declined to notice.

Woolfolk looks a little thinner than when he went away. He is just as cool, however, as he was before sentence had been passed upon him. He was attired in the same suit he wore away, but his face looked cleaner and better for the shave he has recently enjoyed. Soon him. He was attired in the same suit he wore away, but his face looked cleaner and better for the shave he has recently enjoyed. Soon after he was looked up his attorney, Mr. Frank Walker, called to see him, and remained with him some time. During the afternoon Mr. Walker called again, and again remained with his client a long time. What passed between the two, however, is not known, as neither attorney or client will say, of course. During the day, Woolfolk was siked:

"Tom, what do you think of the verdict?"
"I don't care to talk about it. It makes me feel a little chilly, you see, to think that they have decided to hang me for something I did not do."

"Guess they will hang you on the day."

"Guess they will hang you on the day designated?"
"How can I tell. The sentence has been pronounced, and I am a doomed man, it appears. But my case is in the hands of attorneys who have been faithful to me, and who will do all they can for me."

neys who have been faithful to me, and who will do all they can for me."

"Did you feel uneasy in Macon?"

"I can't say that I felt fully satisfied. If I am to be hung. I'd rather be hung by the sheriff than by a mob."

The prisoner manifested a strong determination not to talk upon the subject. During the day it was currently rumored that the Macon officers removed Weolfolk from the Bibb county jail quietly Thursday afternoon and secreted him in a residence because it was feared that an attempt to mob him would be made during the night. The rumor, however, could not be confirmed. The officers who brought Woolfolk up remained in the city until 3:15 yesterday afternoon, and during their stay were seen by Constitution reporters.

"How does Woolfolk take his sentence?"
Jailer Birdsong was asked.
"Oh, just as he takes everything. He hasn't flinched once."

"Is he in good health?"

Oh, just as he takes everything. He hasn't flinched once."

"Is he in good health?"

"Well, yes, his appetite is good. He seems to be tired, though, and just after we left Macon he complained of feeling badly. He is all right now, I believe."

"Do you think there is any hope for him?"

"Well, the people of Macon all think not. As a usual thing, I see and kear only one side. That, of course, is the prisoner's, and most of them manage to win my sympathy. But, somehow or other, Tom always impressed me differently. You can't stay with him three days without making up, your mind that he is guilty. He himself has done more to convince me of his guilt than all the lawyers in Macon could have done."

me of his guilt than all the lawyers in Maconcould have done."

"Yes," said Mr. Bassett, "his own statement did more than anything else during the trial to-make me think him guilty. For example, that story of his about going back and feeling of the bodies was put in simply to account for the blood on his clothing. His story don't fit together."
"Do you think he was in real danger in Ma-

"Do you think he was in real danger in Macon?"

"Well, of course he will be safer here. People in Macon are more familiar with the trune," said Jailer Birdsong. "Now, I saw those dead bodies, the old gray-haired lady says as old, and that little baby 13 months old—and the idea is that Macon people were so much more impressed with the horror and ghastiness of the whole thing, that they necessarily feel most concerned about Tom's punishment." "Was he recognized on the train?"

"Was he recognized on the train?"
"Oh, yes."
"Oh the people in Macon think that he was fairly and squarely convicted by law?"
"Yes, though there are a few who, while they have no doubt, whatever, that he is really guilty, still think that the evidence was not as complete as they expected it to be—not complete enough, in fact, to hang him."
"Did you slip away from Macon, Mr. Bird-cong?"

Did you slip away from Macon, Mr. Birdeong?"

"Oh, yes. I suppose nobody in Macon knows it yet."

The verdict was not a surprise to the public, but there are many persons who think that the evidence did not warrant the conclusion
During the day the matter was discussed pretty freely, and while there is an almost universal belief in Woolfolk's guilt, there are many who think the death penalty should not have been given upon the testimony adduced.

Dr. H. H. Tucker, who has one of the best trained minds in the state, in speaking of the Woolfolk trial festerday, observed:
"I am satisfied of two things; nine person, ere killed, and some one killed them. Legally a am not satisfied that Woolfolk did it, and if I had been on the jury I might have brought in a different verdict. Woolfolk was tried by the newspapers and public opinion. Morally, however, I think he did it. He had a motive for it, and it is just like him."

During the day it was currently rumored that the Macon officers removed Woolfolk from the Bibb county jail quietly Thursday afternoon and secreted him in a residence because it was feared that an attempt to mob him would be made during the night. The rumor, however, could not be confirmed. The officers who brought Woolfolk up remained in the city until 3:15 yesterday afternoon, and during their stay were seen by Constitution reporters.

"How does Woolfolk take his sentence?" Jailer Birdsong was asked.

"Oh, just as he takes everything. He hasn't

"Is he in good health?"

"Well, yes, his appetite is good. He seems to be tired, though, and just after we left Macon he complained of feeling badly. He is all right now, I believe."

"Do you think there is any hope for him?"

"Well, the people of Macon all think not. As a usual thing, I see and hear only one side. That, of course, is the prisoner's, and most of them manage to win my sympathy. But, somehow or other, Tom always impressed me differently. You can't stay with him three days without making up your mind that he is guilty. He himself has done more to convince me of his guilt than all the lawyers in Macon could have done."

"Now, I saw those dead bodies, the old gray-haired lady 84 years old, and that little baby 13 months old—and the idea is that Macon people were so much more impressed with the horror and ghastness of the whole thing, that they necessarily feel most concerned about Tom's punishment."

Was he recognized on the train?"

"Was he recognized on the train?"
"Oh the people in Macon think that he was fairly and squarely convicted by law?"
"Yes, though there are a few who, while they have no doubt, whatever, that he is really guilty, still think that the evidence was not as complete as they expected it to be—not complete enough, in fact, to hang him."
"Did you slip away from Macon, Mr. Bird-tong?"

"Oh, yes. I suppose nobody in Macon knows it yet."

The verdict was not a surprise to the public, but there are many persons who think that the evidence did not warrant the conclusion During the day the matter was discussed pretty freely, and while there is an almost universal belief in Woolfolk's guilt, there are many who think the death penalty should not have been given upon the testimony adduced.

The H. Tucker, who has one of the best trained minds in the state, in speaking of the Woolfolk trial yesterday, observed:

"I am satisfied of two things; nine person, were killed, and some one killed them. Legally I am not satisfied that Woolfolk did it, and if in a different verdict. Woolfolk was tried by the newspapers and public opinion. Morally, however, I think he did it. He had a motive for it, and it is just like him."

Henry was a witness in court yesterday, but see had to make two attempts before he got in he had to make two attempts before he got in his testimony.

When his name was called he was hard at work in his office. Hurrying to the courtroom, he sailed by the bailiff, who stood at the door, and was soon on the witness stand, within a few feet of the court. Henry's linen was spotless, and, with his beautiful curly locks, he had a sort of a Jim O'Neill "the-world-is-mine" look, which captivated the spectators. But Judge Newman's taste for the beautiful lacks cultivation, and wheeling toward the witness, he said, in his severest tone:

"Witnesses in this court are expected to conform to the rules of etiquette and to be clothed in proper habiliments. No man has a right to bare arms in the presence of this tribunal. Retire, Mr. Witness, and properly adjust your clothing so that your testimony can be taken. Retire, sir!"

There are times when second invitations are unnecessary. Captain Harris retired.

In a few minutes he returned, this time arrayed in purple and fine linen sufficient to satisfy the tastes of the court, and his testimony was admitted.

Five companies comprise the battalion—the Greene Riftes of Greenesboro, the Madison Home Guards of Madison, the Elbert Light Infantry of Elberton, the Walton Guards of Walton county, and the Gainesville Volunteers of Gainesville. An election was ordered and held on the 10th, and Cantain W. F. Jones, of Elberton, was and the Gainesville Volunteers of Gainesville.

An election was ordered and held on the 10th, and Captain W. F. Jones, of Elberton, was unanimously elected. But all the members participated in the election under the belief that the provisions of the code governed the election, whereas the act of October, 1885, provided that the field officer should be elected by the commissioned officers. The election was therefore, void. Captain Jones will be elected.

In the County Court, Judge Howard Van Epps presiding, the case of Pleasant Alexander vs. the city of Atlanta was concluded. The plaintiff is a colored woman who sues to recover from the city $2,000. She fell into an excavation in Rhodes street and was injured. The plaintiff was represented by James L. Mayson and the city was represented by Pendleton & Goodwin. About 3 o'clock the case was given to the jury. At 4 o'clock the foreman was sent for and asked if it was likely that a verdict would be agreed upon soon. He said it was not likely, and Judge Van Epps instructed the jury to stay together until a verdict was agreed upon and return a sealed verdict this morning. At 6 o'clock the sheriff took the members of the jury to the Metropolitan hotel for supper.

In the superflor court an interesting case was begun yesterday. Mr. Tretbar, the theatrical and musical manager of New York city, is seeking to recover $300 from Mr. L. DeGive, of Atlanta. The suit grows out of Joseffy's engagement here in 1881. Mr. Wolfsohn came with the pianist as his agent and treasurer, and at the close of the engagement Mr. DeGive's treasurer turned over to him the proceeds. It seems that Wolfsohn failed to make a proper return to Tretbar, and the latter sues for the amount. The plaintiff is represented by Messrs. Milledge and Smith, and the defendant is represented by Messrs. Abbott and Smith. The case will be concluded Monday.

CHICKENS AND DOGS.

The Poultry and Bench Show in Atlanta Next Month.

FACTS ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

AH Arrangements Completed—The Premius List—Rules and Regulations—What the Exhibition Will Be.

The second annual exhibition of the Nationa Poultry and Bench association will take place in Atlanta next month. It will begin on the 9th and end on the 14th. It promises to eclipse any similar exhibition ever seen in the south, and, with the exception of the show held in New York and the one held in Indianapolis, it will excel any ever seen in the United States

The premium list was issued from the press yesterday. It is as attractive in its make up yesterday. It is as attractive in its make up as any premium list ever published in Atlanta. On the corner is a picture of a setter, in a scenting and listening attitude, just like he is setting a covey of birds. In a lower corner is a cut of a hen. On the back of the pamphlet is a comical design—a bull dog smoking a pipe. The book contains 53 pages, and in it is a mass of information for the chicken fancier and dog breeders.

The following greeting appears on the first page of the pamphlet:

"In presenting this, our second annual premium list, to the poultry and pet stock fanciers of America, we desire to call attention to a few important facts. The south is now fully awake to the magnitude of this most important industry, and is rapidly proving herselt to be the grandest poultry raising section on earth. Our first show, held in Atlanta in January, 1887, was the first of any importance ever held in the south. It was a grand success, but only a sample of what our second promises to be. We have secured extra low rates from the different express and railroad companies, the latter not only giving reduced rates for exhibitors but for visitors as well. Spacious quarters have been engaged, and our room is un'imited. The association has been particularly fortunate in their selection of officers and judges, and have obtained men whose reputation for ability and fairness are known throughout the country. We ask the co-operation of all fanciers in making our second show equal to any ever held, not only in the south, but in the United States. We can promise exhibitors every possible advantage. Handsome and well constructed coops are furnished free of charge. We extend to all a cordial invitation to be with us in Atlanta January 9th to 14th inclusive."

clusive."

Some interesting points.

The premiums amount to over $3,000 in cash, and are offered for every variety of chicken, turkey and ducks, and for birds, pigeons, rabbits, squirrels, cats, dogs—everything in the line of poultry and pet stock.

The bench show will be an exceedingly attractive feature of the exhibit. It will be the only real bench show ever held in the south. It will draw to Atlanta breeders from all parts of the United States.

One prominent Philadelphia breeder is coming with from fifty to one hundred dogs. Other eastern breeders will be here with the choicest animals from their kennels.

Mr. J. M. Taylor, who is to be the judge of the dogs, is one of the best judges of dogs in America, and he will bring two or three hundred canine beauties with him.

The poultry judges are from Philadelphia and Chicago, and each one of them will bring with him a large number of birds. Mr. Ewald, of Cincinnati, who will judge the pigeons, is the best authority on pigeons in this country, and he says there will be two or three thousand pigeons here. SOME INTERESTING POINTS.

THEY ARE MISSED.

The Expelled "Anti" Members Receive the Prayers of the Church.

"Has the trouble in your church about those expelled members died.out yet?" asked a reporter of a prominent colored member of Dr. Kent's flock.

"Well are Ithiah in the Church and th

Kent's flock.

"Well, yes, I think it has. There is nothing more to do. We can't take them back unless they make acknowledgement, and they haven't done that yet. So we are just waiting."

"Do you think that any of the expelled members will make that acknowledgement?"

"I could not say. I have heard that one of them intended to come back, but I don't know how that is."

them intended to come back, but I don't know how that is."

"Which one is that?"

"Mich Mitchell. You see, Mich is a middle-aged, steady sort of man, with a family, and he seems to feel it more than the others."

"What about Harper and Huggins?"

"I don't know about Harper. Huggins just don't care."

"I don't know about Harper. Huggins just don't care."
"Is it true that the church has made overtures to the expelled members?"
"I don't know. It may have been that they were informed of the conditions upon which they could get back. And it may be that they were asked to come back."
"In the meantime, you remember them in your prayers?"
"Oh, yes," replied the elder, gravely; "we prayed for them at prayer meeting Wednesday. Oh, yes, we remember them."

An Eminent Physician Reads a Paper of Medical Congress.

At the Ninth International Medical congress, Dr. A. L. A. Toboldt, of the University of Pennsylvania, read a paper stating that out of thirty cases treated with Carisbad Water and the Powdered Oarlsbad Sprudel Salt for chronic constipation, hypochondria, disease of the liver and kidneys, jaundice, adiposia, diabetes, dropey from valvular heart disease, dyspepsia, catarrhal inflammation of the stomach, ulcer of the stomach or spleen, children with marasmus, gout theumatism of the joints gravel, etc., twenty-six were entirely cured, three much improved, and one not treated long enough. Average time of treatment, four weeks. In all of these cases no particular diet was prescribed. The patients were allowed to choose for themselves—to eat whatever their appetites crawed. A remerkable case the doctor reports to the treatment of a market woman who five years ago weighed seventy-five pounds and had increased in weight during that time to 160 pounds. She labored under all the symptoms that would naturally be expected from such an enormous increase of weight. In eight days she lost 16 pounds under the treatment; ril felt much relieved, although she was allowed to follow her usual diet. The doctor claims, in conclusion of his paper, that the Carlsbad Mineral Water, as exported by the city of Carlsbad, being the natural product, is much to be preferred where the quantity of water is no objection, particularly in diseases of the stomach. Whenever the quantity of water is no objection, particularly in diseases of the stomach when away from home) the Powder Carlsbad Sprudel Salt (genuine imported) will answer equally as well. (The Crystal sprudel Salt acts as purgative only.) He sta'es that the effect of the Water and Powder Sprudel Salt is to be relied upon, independently of any adjuncts of treatment, such as diet and exercise, whether taken hot or cold, claiming even an advantage when taken cold, as it acts more decidedly purgative, and that he has given cold, the preference, only using the water hot when no purgative acti At the Ninth International Medical con-

Lung Troubles and Wasting Diseases can be cured, if properly treated in time as shown by the following statement from D. C.
